DEMING LEWIS

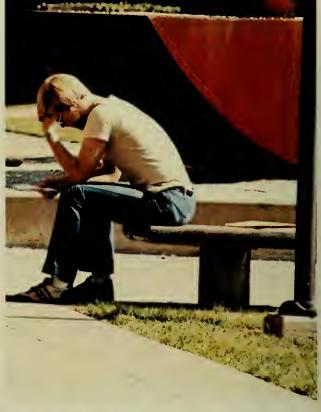

The 1982 Epitome dedicates this book to retiring President Deming Lewis in honor of his years of service to the University.

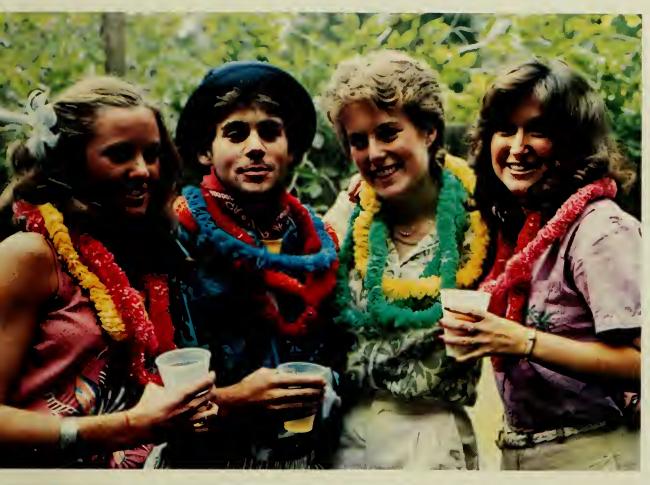

Some things will never change.

The antics of a freshman hall, Bicarb chasers for mystery meat, Lehigh football, and scoping from a Linderland seat. Eco 1 lectures and 7:55s, Spring sunbathing to LEV's vibes. Roommates, Halloween, happy hours, nerds, Good friends, all-nighters, IM's and bell curves.

Years from now when you open this time capsule that some freshman will still call the Epitome, you'll remember the little things that gave Lehigh its personality back in '82. And, if in '92 or '02 you decide to go back you'll probably find that personalitites will not have changed much.

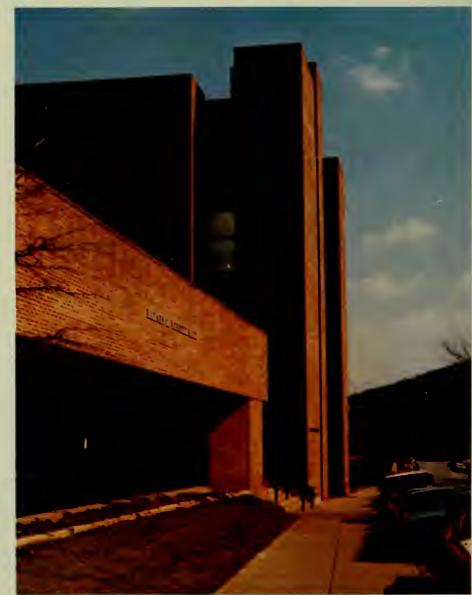

But you'll also have to remember that while the Mountain may still be the Mountain, 1981-82 was the year that foliage got shaken up a bit.

There were Delts, social regulations and promises of social alternatives. As the maintenance of Linderman's rare book collection was assured, final designs were made for a solar-heated addition to Mart Library.

Delta Gamma arrived as Lehigh's fourth sorority just in time to celebrate the tenth anniversary of coeducation. Deming Lewis retired, and Columbia's Peter Likins made the move from Big to Little Apple.

As we race towards the 21st century, alma mater continues to change and grow. But undemeath the shifting exterior will always be that small, conservative four-year hillside hideaway where we dreamed, learned, loved, hated, laughed and cried.

TEN YEARS OF LEHIGH WOMEN

They are professionals. They have evolved from the few to the many. They have proven that a Lehigh education is just as useful for women as for men. They have acquired an identity.

Over the past decade, Lehigh women have made themselves known. They have added a certain "touch" to the social, academic and physical environment of Lehigh's century and six years of male domination.

Coeducation at Lehigh was an experiment that has not failed. Recently highlighted in Lehigh's 1981 Annual Report are just a few of Lehigh's successful women. Let's take a closer look.

(The following are excerpts from the '81 Annual Report)

They give every appearance of success. They are lawyers, accountants, chemical engineers, editors, and managers. And how has Lehigh helped them in their careers? According to Pamela Smith, '76, a cost accountant with Johnson & Johnson, "Lehigh prepared me for the competitiveness of the business world. It also taught me to communicate and interact with other professional people."

They also universally say that while they were "special" (or a new "attraction" on campus), they were treated on an equal basis with men.

And the grades prove it. In the fall of 1980, the Lehigh undergraduate men had an average of 2.626, while the women topped them with 2.891. Lehigh women achieved a 2.904 average in spring 1981, which is just a shade under a 3.00, or B.

They have also made the grade with degrees. In 1972-73, the first of the undergraduate women who had come to Lehigh in 1971, received their degrees. There were ten women graduates in 1973, 27 in 1974, 114 in 1975 (the first year for the first class of four-year women), 131 in 1976, 164 in 1977, 198 in 1978, 221 in 1979, 216 in 1980, and 282 in the 1980-81 academic year.

For Dr. Carey B. Joynt, who headed the special committee that recommended the admission of women, these accomplishments have been no surprise. As suggested in a recent statement:

"In the report which recommended to the trustees that women be admitted to Lehigh, the members of coed committee stated their conviction that 'as a university with a reputation for academic excellence, we believe that Lehigh should play its part in the attempts of this country to provide educational opportunities for women,' and expressed their confidence that 'the highly intellectual caliber of the women who would come to Lehigh would be an adequate guarantee of their educational aims.'

"It is clear that our women students have fulfilled in ample measure these initial hopes. They are a credit to Lehigh and we should be very proud of their presence among us. Speaking personally, I may say that I never had the slightest doubt of their ability to go on to notable achievements."

Janet L. Scagnelli, 75, a lawyer with Consolidated Rail Corp., is one of those notable achievers.

"Being in the first class of women at Lehigh added a unique and special dimension to my undergraduate experience. We stood out on campus just as women in business and the law professions tend to stand out today, although to a less extent than previously. Lehigh proved to be a good assimilator for me."

In the future, let's hope that Lehigh will prove to be as good as an assimilator. For the class of 1985 entering this fall, there were 4,811 applications from males and 1,985 from females, for a total of 6,976.

The activities of the week of September 20 could be thought of as symbolic for these 1985 graduates. Where will they be in ten years? A photographic essay entitled "Identity . . . An Evolution of Women at Lehigh," and a visit by Gloria Steinhem highlighted the tenth year of coeducation at Lehigh.

And this anniversary is looked upon as a cause worth noting. In an extraordinary proclamation, Dr. Deming Lewis, university president, said: "The trustees and I regard this as an occasion for university-wide celebration. The coming of women has made a positive and profound experience in the quality of university life . . . let us keep in mind, while celebrating, the need to further complete the integration of women into the University Community."

THE LAW OF LEHIGH: NEW SOCIAL RULES FOR '82

"This ain't no party
This ain't no disco
This ain't no foolin' around."
The Talking Heads

They were coming, and everyone knew it. First they restricted where party posters could be put. The Drown bus stop could not be a kiosk for potential beer-pounders to find out what house was serving. "A loss of beauty," cried those who love their grafitti. "Thank God," said admissions officers pitching the joint to candidates' parents. And with such sensibilities, they said posters couldn't mention liquor. No booze. Nada. You could still draw cute little characters but it all seemed like rhetoric with no substance. A total hypocracy abounded as clever double entendres slipped past the censor and relayed the

The grim reaper then said that little puppy dogs, who previously added such color to Eco 1 Lecture and Jokes, had to be placed on leashes. We're talkin' cuddly bundles of fur here, chained with leather and steel shakles around their necks. But this blatant case of cruelty didn't end with dogstrangulation as the campus crackdown continued.

Rumors persisted about the 101st Airbourne Division coming on campus to keep us calm, but the campus police were considered just as able...until... the event happened that broke all hell loose — Greek Week '81. Lehigh's own Vietnam. It was a time demanding all to take a stance, even the "booboise", and if there was ever a free thought to be found again we had to fight for the retention of our Greek Week festivities. Call up the Magnificent Seven and have James Colburn and Charles Bronson ride on in, guns aflame.

But the odds were too high and martial law was declared: The "social regulations," which we all knew weren't written by Emily Post.

"Close those parties! Close those weekends! Turn off them there taps," said the men in blue. And like lemmings we listened, even while our own were working for the clampdown by writing and passing laws "for our own good."

Some complained through letters to the editor in the student paper. They havn't been heard from since. Other areas of social life may still be cut down on too. Reliable sources note that Mart's study area will no longer be open 24 hours, all computers will be turned off by 2 A.M. and anyone caught parading between the isles of Linderland Library will be shot on sight. There's a cold wind tearing through South Mountain, a wind that only allows the fittest partiers to survive. But there is an undercurrent — one that no dean can stop. It's a warmth from a frat bar with beer flowing past two a.m., and people dancing to South Side Johnny after designated party-end time. If they stop us on the hill, we'll retreat to the Valley and its sororities. Nothing can stop the Lehigh student from the intellectual and emotional apex of being drunk off his ever-loving A.

There may be no more posters, but there's always word of mouth along the underground. Praise be to the Lehigh druid, and pass another Michelob.

FOOTBALL

1981 Football Review by Frank Rudisill

The 1981 football season was a year of both great achievement and great disappointment for Coach John Whitehead's Engineers. The highlights of the season were the team's fine 8-3 record, an emotional comeback win over Delaware, crushing victories over Penn and Davidson, and Dan Ryan's NCAA record of 14 TD catches in one season.

By season's end the Engineers were poised to wrap up yet another NCAA playoff berth, not to mention their second straight Lambert Cup. A victory in the annual showdown with rival Lafayette would allow them to achieve both of these goals.

That victory never came as the Engineers lost a hard fought 10-3 contest to the 'Pards and were left pondering what could have been.

But nonetheless, an 8-3 record is something to be proud of and not many people beat the mighty Blue Hens in Delaware. Let's go back to September and follow the Engineers on their flight through the '81 campaign.

On opening day in Taylor Stadium many people were wondering what effect the absence of Mark Yeager would have on the Lehigh offense. Senior split end Dan Ryan quickly erased any doubts when he caught a 43 yard touchdown pass on the Engineers fifth play of the game to stake the squad to a 6-0 lead over the Black Bears of the University of Maine. Quarterback Larry Michalski and Ryan connected for two more scores that day to lead the Engineers to an impressive 24-10 victory. Senior placekicker Mike Whalen added to the scoring total by nailing a school record 49 yard field goal.

The Engineers took their 1-0 record north to face the Red Raiders of Colgate and ran into a buzz saw. The Raiders started a freshman at quarterback, 6-5 Steve Calabria. His debut was a rousing success as he led his squad to 454 total yards and a 27-14 victory over the Engineers. The following week the Engineers returned home to the friendly confines of Taylor Stadium to face the rejuvenated Quakers of Pennsylvania. Coach John Whitehead's squad needed a big win to get back on track and that's just what they got.

The Engineers went wild on their way to an impressive 58-0 stomping of the previously undefeated Penn squad. Everyone got into the act as the Lehigh ground game made it's first real appearance of the season and pushed the outmanned Quakers up and down the field.

Next, the squad travelled to Newark, Delaware and readied themselves for the showdown of the year. Tubby Raymond's Blue Hens were number one in the nation and seemed unbeatable.

The contest started badly for the Engineers as Delaware quarterback Rick Scully took an option 43 yards for a score midway through the first quarter as 25,000 Blue Hen partisans roared their approval.

It got worse later in the quarter as Delaware's Owen Brad picked off a Michalski pass and raced 52 yards down the sideline for another score.

Then lightning struck. Michalski and Ryan dusted themselves off and connected three times to stake the Engineers to a 21-14 lead. A 45 yard Mike Whalen field goal sealed the win for the squad.

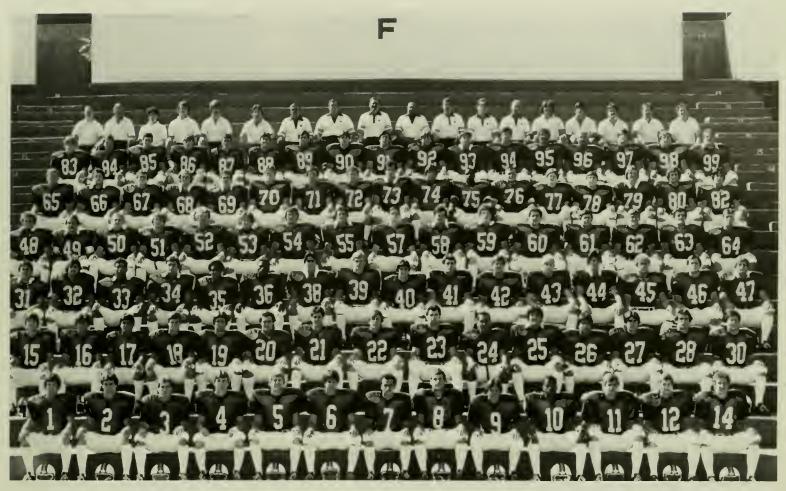

The Engineers then returned home to face the up and down Huskies of the University of Connecticut. The Engineers needed a last second Michalski to Ryan aerial of 83 yards to offset the running and passing of U Conn's Ken Sweitzer. Ryan's fourth quarter score gave the Engineers the victory, 24-21.

The following week the squad travelled to Durham, New Hampshire to face the heralded Wildcats of the University of New Hampshire. It was a hard fought contest which saw the Engineer's Joe Rabuck and Chris Sexton each score on 1 yard runs. The Wildcats also tallied twice and with :22 to play Lehigh's Mike Whalen lined up to attempt a 29 yard field goal. The record setting kicker could not turn the trick this time and the Engineers lost a heartbreaker, 13-12.

The squad then travelled to Lewisburg to face the Bisons of Bucknell and totally dominated the contest, winning 18-0. The Engineers ran up 476 total yards and 25 first downs while the sterling defensive unit held the Bisons to 179 yards and 12 first downs.

The Engineers rolled over Davidson the following week 69-7. The point total was the highest for a Lehigh squad in one game since 1903.

Senior tight end Paul Anastasio got the Engineers on the board first when he hauled in a 7 yard pass from Michalski.

Ryan tallied three times and rolled up 115 yards on 5 catches while senior Ed Tulskie ran for 101 yards.

The squad faced Division II power Millersville State the following week and shut down the Marauders by the score of 40-7. The Engineers rode to victory on the shoulders of their big fullback, junior John Ahsler. The "A-train" muscelled over the Millersville goal line for one score and played consistently all day in leading the squad to victory.

Senior kicker Mike Whalen sealed the Engineers next victory, a 23-20 squeaker over the Huskies of Northeastern. Whelan booted a 26 yard field goal with 3:38 remaining. The squad piled up 561 total yards, saw Dan Ryan break the I-AATD record by grabbing his 14th of the year, and was greatly assisted by Whelan's three field goals.

The following Saturday the Engineers ran out of the Taylor Stadium tunnel into a 35 degree icebox ringed by a sellout crowd of 20,000. Unfortunately for the squad, it just wasn't to be as the hated 'Pards triumphed 10-3. The Lehigh defense put on a great show of guts and determination by stopping the Leopards four times from the two yard line. The frequently unheralded Engineer defense was led by the standout play of senior defensive lineman Dave Szablowski, Russ Becker, Karl Nielson and Joe Kowalonek. Seniors Ken Rosen, Joe Macallera, and Pete Smith also played well for the Engineers in their last appearances in Taylor Stadium.

Offensively, Michalski and Ryan led the club statistically but the squad was greatly aided by the strong line play of senior center Mark Sitar. Sitar, along with linemates Kevin Greene, and Pat Lacey were the real heroes of the Lehigh offense.

WRESTLING

LEHIGH WRESTLERS SURPRISE CONTENDERS, PLACE SECOND FOR SECOND YEAR by: John H. Czekanski

After the first losing season since 1945 the Lehigh Wrestling team hoped to end the season with the Easterner Intercollegiate Wrestling Association crown. But, for the second year in a row the Engineers placed second behind the Midshipmen of Navy.

Navy qualified seven matmen scoring 133.5 points to Lehigh's 131.5, and the Engineers qualified five wrestlers for the nationals. Syracuse, the defending EIWA champs placed third with 122 points and qualified four wrestlers for the NCAA's. Making the trip for Lehigh to Aimes, lowa where the Nationals will be held are Bob Weaver (first at 118), Tom Husted (first at 126), Pete Schuyler (first at 134), Tom Bold (second at 150), and Colin Kilrain (first at 190).

In the 118 pound class, Bob Weaver who was last year's runner up, avenged the loss of a year ago by defeating Kris Rowlette of Wilkes 17-7. Weaver dominated his weight class with victories of 15-3 and 15-0 leading to the finals.

Lehigh's 126 pounder Tom Husted became a two-time Eastern champ by easily winning his early matches. In his first match of the tournament Husted gained a pin at 1:35 and then won by lopsided scores of 17-5 and 20-10. In the finals Husted won by a default due to an injury to Rusty Fiste of Princeton.

At the 134 pound class Pete Schuyler, who was wrestling in his first EIWA tournament, gained a first place by defeating Mark Lacovelli of Syracuse in the finals 7-4. With his win in the 134 class Schuyler continued Lehigh's domination of the 134 pound class, and marked the fourth year a Lehigh wrestler has won at that weight. Prior to Schuyler, Daryl Burley had been the victor for three consecutive years.

Lehigh's Tom Bold who was a finalist in the Eastemers last year, was looking to gain a victory in the 150 pound class. Bold won his opening match with a pin in :32 and then won close matches by the scores of 11-10 and 7-6 in advancing to the finals. In the finals though Bold failed to gain the victory, losing to Frank Schaffer of Navy by the score of 14-8.

In the 158 pound class sophomore Roy Lobdell gave an inspiring performance in his loss to Chris Catalfo — the eventual winner. Lobdell was the only wrestler to take Catalfo down in the tournament and ended up with a fourth place finish.

Colin Kilrain, Lehigh's team captain, once again showed his dominance in the East by easily winning his weight class. Wrestling at the 190 pound class, a step up from last year, Kilrain breezed through the tournament. He pinned his first two opponents and in his third match won by a lopsided score of 21-4. In the finals Kilrain pinned Pat Ryan of Navy in 4:29 and in doing so captured his fourth EIWA championship. Kilrain became only the fourth four-time Eastern champ and was awarded the Outstanding Wrestler of the tournament. In the Nationals, Kilrain will be favored to win the coveted National Title.

Fine performances were also turned in by Lehigh wrestlers Brian Yates, Jeff Newman, and Benji Dudech.

SPRING

SORORITIES RUSH INTO PLEDGING

The bus departs from the flagpole on a cold January night. Two hundred girls squeeze in for the bumpy ride bound for the other side of the mountain. They are headed for the sororities — a place they have heard about vaguely but have not been allowed to discuss in depth. They are apprehensive possibly, but most likely just going through rush because it's the thing to do and besides their gryphon said it was a good experience.

After a long, hard week of rush, 75 girls became pledges on January 30, 1982. This year with the arrival of Delta Gamma, an off-campus alternative to the SMAGS triad (Alpha Phi, Alpha Gamma Delta and Gamma Phi Beta) and a sign that sororities on campus are growing in demand and popularity, more girls were able to become part of the greek system.

"Every year we see more and more interest by Lehigh women in wanting to join sororities. We're trying to make that available to as many women as possible," commented Larry Philippi, assistant dean of students. He added, "Rush was a marvelous success. It's a real tribute to the role sororities are playing on campus and the desire of other women to participate in that experience."

In the spring, those enthusiastic pledges will be sporting fratemity sportswear and will become the builders of greek week beds and probably the eaters of greekers and pies. They will most probably look back on rush as a time of confusion and indecision, but as they don their pledge pins it will all have seemed worth it.

FLOWERING OF THE ARTS

The arts at Lehigh, sometimes concealed by a veil of engineering and physical sciences, are alive and flowering on the campus. Presentations of the visual arts, music, and the humanities have grown in number and have attracted larger audiences. Not only has an increased awareness been shown by the students, but also by the administration which has been pouring money into the roots of the arts.

The toils of the Cultural Affairs Committee, composed of student and faculty representatives, have blossomed in the University's art galleries, lecture halls, and programs of student organizations, such as drama, band, and choir.

The art galleries on campus display the works of students, local artists, and well-known contemporary artists. Dubois Gallery, in Maginnes, is a prominent location of those students who haven't read the cultural events column in the BROWN AND WHITE, while the Ralph Wilson Gallery and the Hall Gallery, in the Alumni Memorial Building, impress prospective freshmen heading for the admissions office. Surrounded by the walls of Mudd, Mart Sinclair, and Whitaker, is another kind of gallery, the Sculpture Garden, where the arts incorporate a sense of Lehigh's environment, Bethlehem Steel, in the sculptures placed throughout the courtyard.

Last fall's schedule of art exhibits began with a Pre-Columbian Sculpture display, part of which mysteriously made its way into the janitor's closet. A photographic study of the treasures of Tutankhamun, the flowing forms of Stuart Edelson's sculptures, and an arcade of lifesize puppets were some of the exhibits to complete last fall's calendar. January brought "Philadelphia, Past and Present", a comparative presentation of Philadelphia in the 1920's and as we know it today. A computer art exhibit, a fusion of art and engineering, demonstrated for students the computer as a medium of artistic expression rather than a source of terminal frustration.

Many of the contemporary exhibitions were accompanied by the artists, who lectured at the opening receptions. An annual series of "Spring Lectures in the Arts" was created to promote the cultural life at Lehigh. The visiting Lecturers Committee has extended invitations to many lecturers, including Isaac Bashevis Singer, Nobel prize winner in Literature.

A major promotion of the cultivation of the arts at Lehigh can be attributed to the student body. Theater at Lehigh has shown its efforts in the productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream", "The Canterbury Tales" (not to be confused with SAC's presentation), and "The Elephant Man", while the Lehigh University Choir presented French and German carols in their annual Christmas Vespers, and wedding music from the 16th to the 20th centuries in the Spring Vespers.

More and more the Lehigh community has been offered a multitude of cultural events, stemming from generous funding and an awakened interest in the arts. The seeds of culture have been planted in the territory of technology, resulting in a flowering of the arts.

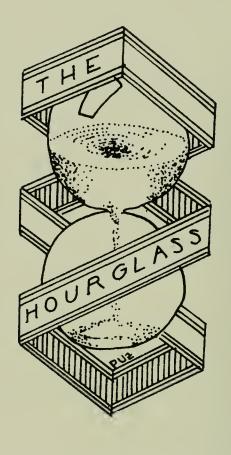

JAMES TAYLOR

The Hourglass: Scapegoat to some; alternative to others (s---, I hate that word); But to most, probably ridiculous. Well, over a year ago the Hourglass emerged in some nameless senior's mind. To those who worked for a year, the Hour Glass was to be Lehigh's first, self-contained, everynight — night club — alcohol included. After you stop laughing, realize it was the administration's wisdom and an apparent lack of our money (despite a $4.3 million dollar budget surplus) that transformed the Hourglass to mediocrity.

In all fairness to the administration, and the people involved with the Hourglass — It may not have lived up to our wildest dreams, but it sure is a step ahead of what we were used to at Lehigh. This year brought us some top quality acts. Mixed Nuts provided more than a few laughs, while Greg Greenway surprised us with some great original music.

More importantly, the friends that we spent time with talking, enjoying, and laughing are what will be most remembered.

Letter for the 1982 Epitome

The Class of 1982 and I are planning to leave the University at just about the same time. We can look backward with considerable satisfaction and forward with anticipation.

While my experience goes back eighteen years and most of yours only four, I believe that Lehigh's growth has paralleled your own. Just as you have continued your learning process, the University has also been learning. Just as most of you have developed professional competence in a career discipline, so has the University developed its resources and its academic programs in order to face adequately the challenges of the decade of the 80's.

Our principal concerns, though, have been to develop you as well-rounded and fully participating citizens as Lehigh must continue to develop beyond the purely professional to include the many cultural opportunities with which we are surrounded. I hope that the University has, in your judgment, lived up to its responsibilities, both in providing quality education and in offering many desirable opportunities for your personal development.

On behalf of Lehigh University, I wish each of you a productive and happy life as an alumnus or an alumna.

Daming Lewis

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

According to the 1981-1983 University Catalog, Lehigh is in the midst of a "Flowering of the Arts," and in the opinion of Barbara B. Frankel, Associate Dean of the College, nothing could be more true. Signs of the College's vitality on campus can be found in many areas. This year's incoming class of 1985 (with 457 students, the largest ever at Lehigh) was offered the choice of 39 majors and 51 minors, covering such diverse fields as Chemistry and Urban Studies. These traditional subjects were augmented by several special programs, which were very popular among the students. One of the most unusual of these was a course in Clowning offered through the Speech and Theatre department. Two professional clowns, normally employed by Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus, were on campus every Friday afternoon during the spring semester to help teach several potential comics the art of clowning.

In an effort to bring engineering, business, and arts students together, the Science, Technology and Society program offers a minor in Technology and Human Values which allows for the study of the interaction between man and his machines. Dean Frankel also believes that building links among the faculty of the University's three colleges is an important step in providing a properly balanced education. This balance, she notes, includes instruction in the sciences as well as in the humanities. Therefore, as a method of striking the correct balance in education, new distribution requirements were established in the college last year. Incoming freshman must now complete at least one lab science course and demonstrate competence in a foreign language or culture in order to graduate from the University.

Admitting that the college "will have to dig deeper for good students" in the future, Dean Frankel is optimistic about prospects for the '80's. Next year will see the establishment of a distinguished professorship and a six person increase in the faculty. The college is "getting better all the time," Frankel affirms, as it attracts students who are curious about their surroundings and who want to explore the diverse education the college offers.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS

DEAN RICHARD W. BARSNESS

Citing a veritable explosion in the number of activities during the 1981-82 academic year, Dean Richard W. Barsness believes Lehigh's College of Business and Economics is building consistently on an already solid reputation. The success of former graduates from the college's five major programs (Accounting and Law, Economics, Finance, Management and Marketing) attests to the strength of its academic curriculum which, according to Barsness, has now taken on the desired "general shape". When asked to name those characteristics of the college he feels are especially important, the Dean mentioned the blend of theory and practical application that distinguishes the undergraduate program and the large amount of faculty with actual experience in the business community. Perhaps the most important factor in enriching the business student's education, however, is the availability of extracurricular activities. In this area the college has announced the establishment of the Rauch Center for Executive Development (made possible by a gift of $500,000 from Philip Rauch '33) which will help students and managers in local businesses to develop vital communications skills. Next year the University will add a newly endowed chair in the William R. Kenan, Jr. Professorship in Management and Technology and the college's first candidate will help to inform prospective students about Lehigh's program. The hosting of a weekend-long conference on Reindustrialization and an impressive list of guest speakers, among them Alfred Kahn, rounded out the list of out of the classroom activities.

According to Dean Barsness, the market for business students educated at private universities like Lehigh will remain strong for some time, and the college, through its academic program and extra-curricular activities, will continue to produce graduates who will add to a list of alumni with a "very positive track record".

FINANCE, MANAGEMENT & MARKETING

Donald M. Bolle: Dean of College of Engineering and Physical Sciences

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING AND PHYSICAL SCIENCES

As of this academic year, Lehigh's College of Engineering and Physical Sciences is under new leadership. Dean Donald M. Bolle, formerly of the department of electrical engineering, has replaced John Karakash at the top spot in the college, and has brought with him many high aspirations and ideas for the future development of the college.

When asked to note his first impressions of the job, his reply was emphatice: "We're going places, nationally and internationally." Bolle sees the college as a currently very strong school ready "to take off" toward a preeminate position during the 1980's and 1990's. The quality of both students and faculty that the college attracts is exceptionally strong, and research conducted at the University merits national notice.

Several new developments have also occured in the college's nine departments (Chemical Engineering, Chemistry and Biochemistry, Civil Engineering, Fundamental Sciences, Electrical and Computer Engineering, Industrial Engineering, Mechanical Engineering and Mechanics, Metallurgy and Materials Engineering and Physics). The addition of the CAD-CAM (Computer Aided Design — Computer Aided Manufacturing) computer to the University's system, provides a somewhat unique opportunity for undergraduates to utilize ths interactive system. Research is also being conducted in such diverse fields as robotics, biomedical engineering and polymer sciences.

Dean Bolle believes that an engineer's education should optimally include time spent in the study of the arts and social sciences, in addition to the normal sequential course of study in the physical sciences. This would enable the student to develop a greater feel for society and a greater appreciation for the more aesthetic parts of life. For this reason, Lehigh undergraduates may structure their programs so as to make possible the completion of an arts minor, while still obtaining their engineering degrees.

It is, however, not the purpose of the college to teach a student everything there is to know in a given field, Bolle contends, but rather to give him the basic tools with which he can further educate himself, after his graduation from Lehigh.

MUSTARD AND CHEESE

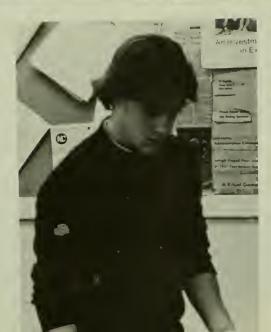

Brown and White

Bethlehem, PA — Outgoing Brown and White editors Barb Robertson and Jeff Eichenfield, and Business Manager Cliff White announced yesterday the end of another prosperous year of success stories. Newly elected Editor in Chief Sanford Block is expected to continue this long-standing trend with Tom DiPiazza, Mary Frances Donley and Ricky Baff as the Fall '82 Editorial Board.

The University provided the newspaper with a moderate amount of juicy news, this year, as the editors covered the Delts case, the rare book controversy, the discipline committee, the new social regulations and an overindulgence of social alternatives. 1981-82 was also the year the paper moved its editorial pages to the second half of the paper to put more news in the front, and established a regular calendar in the "What's Happening" column.

News pages offered an in-depth look at newly appointed President Peter Likins, and Sports covered the Easterns wrestling tournament with a four-page pullout. Donley's Features pages included a timely cancer pullout, and an Emmy Award contest won by Father Rich. The B&W even made a friend out of Provost Arthur Humphrey, who most araciously displayed his wares as the Clown of the Year in the April 1 issue.

When not munching bartered Lehigh Pizza and repeating well-worn double entendres, the editors spent many leisurly hours in the composing rooms of printer Bernie Fetsko. Robertson especially enjoyed these visits as she played the game of "Guess which page I rearranged while Bernie was watching TV." Bernie's ever gentle response was always the same — "Hey Missy Editor, what do ya think you're doing! You put that baaack!"

The mid-semester banquet for the Fall staff was a lesson in mature adult behavior. The editors and their advisors experimented with a new medium — the crayon — on the paper tablecloths of The New Street Bridgeworks. As a surprised Jeff Stewart looked on, Marybeth Edelan ate her foot for dinner. (Her foot was bigger than she thought, however, and she had to wash it down with a pitcher). Bernie's four-hour bash at the Wine Cellar in June looked more like a state department dinner as the staff raised glasses with members of the International House. (Ed loved their accents.)

The January staff change brought more students to the rank of budding Pulitzer winners and pen names such as Dip, Doggie Dork, Geraunch, Kip, MB, Trish, Tommora, Red, Sister MF and Mr. Block & surfaced.

June not only deprived the paper of its senior editors and writers, but of the paper's longtime buddy Professor Mac. But even though staffs come and go every four years, the paper remains as a Lehigh institution, and a learning tool of the growing Journalism division.

BOXING

After a disappointing season the traditionally tournament tough boxing squad was again impressive in post season competition.

Though saddled with injuries the Engineers managed to place third in Easterns competition and sixth nationally, due to some exceptional individual performances.

At Easterns held at Lehigh in March, Senior Mike Bertuch captured the 132 pound title with an impressive final round victory over Villanova's Scott Clark. Senior heavyweight Ron Garris captured the Eastern title with an upset TKO over Dom Arvaro of West Chester. These two fighters represented Lehigh in the National Championships held at West Chester in April. Both performed impressively. Bertuch outpointed defending national champ Mark Sayne of Penn State to earn his spot in the finals and a second place finish. Garris also battled his way to second place finish.

1982 could be even better for the Engineers as Senior Tom Laessig and sophomore Pledge Cooper will join Garris as Easterns favorites.

It usually goes something like this: James Michail Anderson — Birdsboro, Pennsylvania; Mechanical Engineering; Russian Minor; Cultural Affairs Committee; Phi Eta Sigma; Rifle Team.

That one brief description next to your yearbook's senior picture condenses four years into a sentence fragment. But for each one of us, the Lehigh experience could fill a book — of successes, failures, friendships, memories of good times and times we'd like to forget, from freshman to senior year.

We've come a long way since we first looked at the Lehigh yearbook as freshmen, not catching the inside jokes, flipping pages to find a familiar face or scene, checking out the fratemities and sororities, and looking with envy at the mugshots of self-assured ambitious, mature-looking seniors.

Well, now we are those seniors, and in spite of impressive job offers and bright futures for some of us, we realize that the self-assured look in the yearbook pictures is not confidence, but just one more skill we've learned at Lehigh—the art of slinging it.

Actually, the future was uncertain for most of us when we had those pictures taken. Many of us were being prescreened from interviews, reflected from law schools, or were counting credits with our fingers crossed. But, like the seniors from other years, we found we could pull off that self-confident success smile in the face of surrounding chaos for the mugshot. Just look at those arins.

Our smiles were a little more uncertain that first hot and humid day when we unpacked our most beloved belongings in our rooms under the nosey evaluating gaze of a soon-to-be-intimate stranger called your roommate. And you knew that person was thinking the same thing about you as he or she unpacked. What kind of album was that? Could it really have been Michael Jackson, or Willie Nelson, Or Kiss? Then there was the wardrobe, offering clues to your roommate's athletic ability, rung on the social ladder, and even personality. For instance, when one roommate removed his perfectly creased jeans from a plastic-covered dry cleaner's hanger, and the other uncrumpled his cords from the bottom of a Food Lane bag, it was bound to be a long year.

Other identifying traits such as blacklight posters, more than three stuffed animals in pastel colors (especially for guys), a picture of mom, a bong, cases of Tab or Coors or a box of Twinkies, were all noted and silently filed away for the first letter home.

Differences diminished though, as we cemented friendships at classes, on the Hill, during intramurals, at Linderman, and probably most often, on the hall sharing horror stories of UC food over popcom and pizza.

Perhaps our smiles were dimmed a bit by the confusion and hassles of registering, getting phones and I.D. and meal card pictures, and later, add dropping because Eco 1 was overscheduled.

And then we experienced Lehigh courses for the first time: the huge lectures where you could snore and not be heard above the joking and pagetuning; the small classes with required attendance and assigned seats, never scheduled after 9 A.M. and the seminars in which you were expected to spill your guts out to 15 people who looked ready to laugh in your face or discuss you with their friends over lunch.

Soon the new became routine and the routine was discarded in favor of trying out some of the University's alternatives to academics; the famous Lehigh traditions of the Turkey Trot, Halloween parties, Lafayette Weekend, Spring Break, Greek Week and, of course, pub nights, happy hours, tequila sunrise parties, open parties . . . If it seemed like most of the alternatives involved alcohol, it was probably because most did. At least the popular ones, anyway. We learned that Lehigh was a "beer-swilling jock school," as it would later be categorized by the New York Times Selective Guide to Colleges, and, fresh out of more restricted high school atmosphere, not many freshman were complaining — yet.

First semester, freshman men were wined and dined by Greeks during rush, but the wooing didn't last forever. Second semester the "fun" of pledging was painstakingly pointed out to them by upperclassman brothers. Meanwhile, freshman women were being invited to every fratemity's parties, as well as being rushed and many then pledging, sororities. For all of us, it was a time of experimentation and maturing. When we made mistakes, people understood—after all, we were only freshman—and there was always a gryphon to help us stumble along.

As we made friends and became part of the University community, we began to add a unity and personality to the Class of '82.

When we entered our sophomore year, many men and women were now Greek, and the rest were living on residence halls of their choice (first, second, third, fourth) or off-campus. Intramurals got a little more competitive. So did classes. No more "Intro to . . . " or Freshman English. We had gotten our academic toes wet freshman year, and now we were plunging in. Some swam, some sunk, and most just managed to keep their heads above water. When we weren't gulping under the pressure, we were gulping beer — now at Many's, Your Mother's Bloomers, Fourth Street Sa-Ioon and Scarlet O'Hara's in addition to the Hill. The fratemities were still our main source of entertainment, though.

Other hangouts for the sophomore class included Linderland Library (otherwise known as the Zoo) and the snackbar, which was renovated that year.

It was during our sophomore year that John Steckbeck, the man who led us at the freshman rally to the chant of "82 We're true blue, were the best at Lehigh U," as he had led countless freshman rallies during his years as the University, passed away. "Steck" was an institution here, and his enthusiasm and love for Lehigh students are not soon forgotten.

During our sophomore year we saw the completion of Brodhead House, a new high-rise dorm on the comer of E.

Morton and Vine streets, with all the latest conveniences including air conditioning and a cafeteria. It provided for an additional 200 students and helped unburden the existing over crowded residence halls.

Even with the addition of Brodhead, by junior year many of us chose to move off-campus. The thrill of dorm living had worn off for those who still chose to live there, in spite of the beautiful new Pergola installed between McClintic-Marshall and Drinker dorms. It had potential, but no one quite figured out for what. The one party there was held in total darkness because lights were not installed. But, if nothing else, it was a conversation piece.

Other conversation pieces installed on campus were the three Rings, that Ballentine Beer-like structure between Mart and Maginnes Hall, and "Strake", a metal sculpture resembling a ship waitresses at Friendly's or as local lifeguards to get some "Hands-on experience." We had become practical (maybe worried is the word) and started to look beyond our college days to the big bad future that loomed ahead.

Our playfulness returned in the fall, as people decided to squeeze every last bit of good times out of our final year. Nostalgia had set in. But when we returned from our too real summer jobs, we found still regulations slapped on us - the result of last year's out of hand Greek Week. No one was pleased to hear that Greek Week had been abolished. The administration also placed severe restrictions on pub nights, happy hours, and had limited open parties per house to three each semester. In addition, Delta Tau Delta's charter was revoked for four years, and the house was turned into a residence hall.

Many students were bitter, but some members of the class had gotten tired of the typical open beer parties by that time anyway, and looked forward to a more programmed, varied social life which did not revolve around the fratemities.

Campus groups, funded generously from the University, made an effort to fill the gap the fratemity parties left, but, perhaps because of its newness, attendance was poor at first.

Although we got off on a bad foot and many of the seniors were upset with the way the new social regulations were handed down with little student input, as the semester progressed, things went smoothly and complaints subsided. The rules were relaxed a bit, allowing four open parties for the semester and reinmoored in front of Maginnes. Both pieces were donated by Phil and Muriel Berman, who were also the ones who brought us the steel trees in Saucon Valley and the "Frito in a Cage" or whatever it's called outside Chandler-Ulmann. Their donations have been met with reactions ranging from appreciation to disgust. But they do stimulate conversation.

Junior year was marked by some hard work, for some of us the last we'd really do here. Engineers especially worked diligently to secure good summer jobs in their field, and business and even arts majors gave up their vacation stints as stating Greek Week, minus the alcoholdependent events.

That year marked the tenth anniversary of coeducation at Lehigh and a week-long celebration in the fall helped the guys remember how lucky they were to have us. The University also promoted a "flowering of the arts" at Lehigh, and backed it up with arts festival, a diverse spring Festival, and other University-funded activities which helped vary the social life.

Seniors were now roaming all over South Bethlehem, for housing, drinking, and, for the first time, for shopping at three new businesses. Opening that year were the New Street Bridgeworks, the Ann Ar Book Shop, and Touch of Class card and gift shop — all three part of the South Side Revitalization efforts. In addition, new sidewalks with benches and attractive brick patterns livened up the South Side considerably.

On campus, some major changes were being made. University President Deming Lewis retired, effective in June, and his replacement was named: Peter Likins, a provost at Columbia University. Also retiring were Preston Parr, dean for student affairs, and Joseph McFadden, professor of journalism and a campus institution. McFadden's Law of the Press class, affectionately called Jokes 122, was taken at one time or another by almost everyone by the time they were members of the senior class.

Some high points that year were the addition of a fourth sorority, Delta Gamma, which initiated women from every class, including a large number of seniors; a Lehigh research project which was conducted in space on the U.S. space shuttle which was launched in March; and major and vastly improving renovations to Grace Lounge.

As we had our senior pictures taken, signed up for our interviews, chose graduate schools, and searched for jobs, we left the University on a threshold.

With a new president, and several new administrators, a "flowering of the arts" effort, a new set of social regulations, and a new sorority, Lehigh is changing quickly.

But the Lehigh we made and now leave behind, for better or for worse, will remain in our memories as real as anything the University becomes in the future.

OFF-CAMPUS LIVING THE OTHER ALTERNATIVE

by Andy Lehren

Most travels through Lehigh begin on the dormatory tracks, first boarded on a sticky August day filled with the angst of whether your roommate is normal or from New Jersey. After meeting the Gryphon and going through all the social fopas attached to freshman year, a choice must be made on the next year's living arrangement: Do I stay a dorm dweller? Do I hop on the Greek mainline? Or do I enter that great unknown of off-campus living?

Some find that a social dorm is a contradiction in terms, or that life in a fraternity or sorority should be left to those who are true Greeks at heart. Choosing life in South Bethlehem, though, includes more involvement. Seek roommates who take showers, but take them leaving plenty of hot water for you. Find a landlord who repairs problems before the lease expires. Keep the heating bill below triple didgets per person. And female students consider if the neighborhood is shady only from the way the sun strikes the buildings at mid-day during tanning season.

Somewhere around 500 students enter those buildings per year. Ah, freedom. Ah, the peace and quiet. Ah, the chance to wake up and not see Lehigh. Ah, the homeyness, Ah, the rent check? The toilet doesn't flush? The phone has been disconnected? Don't any of your roommates have a vaccum cleaner!

Off-campus living involves all of these things, and their resolution hinges on the student's self-determination. After all, off-campus is the existentialism of university living. There are no Gryphons, no R.A.'s or house presidents, and someone has to buy the toilet paper (I got the last three rolls from Linderman last week. It's your turn!).

With the responsibilities of off-campus living to shirk off, there is also time to enjoy the detatchment and the independance that comes with living in a place you can truly call your own. Until it gets messy that is. Then you can call it your landlord's.

Nothing is as nebulous as the landlord, who you visit only to get your security deposit back, (along with two big guys named Rocky and Guido, if you're smart.) Mr. Landlord is the guy whose voice you hear only on an answering machine. He's the man you mail the rent check to, along with a repair list he can throw out.

But it's home, and to be serious, a good time for those who try it. You realize that those people you once referred to as "townies" are actually neighbors who smile, wave, and wish you luck on exams.

The hominess and independance override most problems and when it's all over, you miss your home away from home. You miss the neighbors you wished you knew better. You miss the way you had to jiggle the key to open the front door. Sure there are sacrifices involved in the move off-campus — nobody delivers the Brown and White to your door. But you've lived in a place you can truly call home, even if last nights' keg party did make your kitchen smell like a Molson Brewery. It's those memories you take with you, along with those memories of studying under a bare General Electric bulb waiting for the water half-filling a tin pot to boil because there's more maxwell house to drink before the bulb can be honorably discharged and you can go to sleep in your own bed and dream in a neighborhood you call your own, that make the move worth while.

We at Delta Upsilon are one of the few fraternities at Lehigh to live in a true atmosphere of diversity. DU brothers are involved in many different activities on campus and all of them excel in some facet of campus life.

Many DU brothers are involved with the Lehigh football program. Several brothers have earned East Coast Conference honors while performing for the squad and each year many DU brothers earn varsity letters while performing for the Engineers.

DU brothers are also active in varsity lacrosse, track, baseball, and basketball as well. Many DU brothers are involved in such campus activities as the Scuba Club, Tau Beta Pi Engineering Honor Society, Photography Club, the Student Activities Council (where DU's are actively involved in the arranging and promoting of lectures and concerts), the Marketing Club, the Rugby Club, the Boxing Club, the Student Investment Club, and the Brown and White.

The brothers at DU are also active in scholarship. Three brothers placed on the Dean's List last semester as Delta Upsilon was the most improved house on the hill. We moved from 31st to 15th academically.

Delta Upsilon is also active in faculty and alumni relations. This past semester DU sponsored a Finance Career Night at the chapter house where faculty members, students, and approximately 20 business professionals discussed career opportunities over cocktails.

This past April DU hosted outgoing Lehigh President Deming Lewis for a testimonial in his honor. Dr. Lewis (who is a DU brother out of Harvard) was presented with a plaque honoring his 18 years of service to the university.

DU is also known for it's social calendar. This past April the house held its annual Semi-Formal and over 35 couples attended the affair which included a live band. The annual Beach Party was a great success this year as DU topped off its social calendar with one of the biggest parties of the year.

Fraternally,
The Brothers of Delta Upsilor

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Once as an unsuspecting freshman three all too short years ago, I stood in front of the yearbook table at SAC activities night and signed my name under thirty or so others, not knowing then that my simple scrible was actually signing away a major portion of my life junior year. Creating this conglomerate called "The Eptiome" has unfolded to me the meaning behind its curious title. Just what this yearbook is the eptiome of — Hard work, planning, organization, cooperation, hair-tearing frustration and the sweet reward of not only seeing one's creativity in print, but also of celebrating the book's completion with those who contributed to the task (Ah, the banquet!) — all these elements involved in condensing the Lehiah experience into four hundred pages of ink and paper.

Many people deserve credit for their contributions to the making of this book. Among them is Sharon Friedman, our faculty advisor, for her smooth negotiations with the administration. To Steve, Donna, and the rest of the crew at Merin studios, my personal thanks for your guidance, as well as for your willingness to make the trek up to Lehigh whenever we needed you, broken down cars and lost briefcases barred. To Ruth Mathis, the journalism secretary, I give many thanks also for dealing with frantic seniors and confused parents, letting them unleash their wrath on her before finally getting to me in a much calmer state.

To Brian, Laura, Michelle and the rest of the photography staff, many thanks for your ever-ready and willing shutter skills, and to Ben for your prompt, if not entirely ledgible identifications. Mary-Jo, you were always dependable & organized not only with the senior section but with rest of the book as well. Sue Perkins and Meredith, deserve credit not only for their section but also for their ever-present good nature, even in the face of deadlines, (despite some doubts, they did finally finish the football layout!), half completed artwork, and the lost volleyball team shot. My gratitude to June and Laura for delivering a unique view of the fraternities, and to Sue Shoop and Tom Loisch for their work on the Activities and Academics sections. Nigel, you worked wonders at juggling the group shot photography scheduling, and Craig, thanks for producing an original cover and for being available for artwork and last-minute photography at a moment's notice.

Rusty, in your usually terrific manner, thanks for always doing any task requested (O.K. who wants to type?). Allysa, thanks for your help with layouts and more importantly for your undying moral support. Those endless hours of commiseration finally paid off in print. Susie Jaffe, we never could have finished this book without your expertise in handling funds and adds. Well, contrary to popular belief, we all made it through with our sanity intact.

To my parents, my friends, and my roommates at 422 Taylor St., Richards, Cape Cod, and my "home away from home" — you all helped me just by being there to listen to my complaints and to lend support when I needed it.

Class of '82, we give to you the yearbook, composed half beneath the padding of long-awaited soundproofing in the office off the game room and half on the living room floor of a musty, salt-stained Cape house, complete with beach sand between the pages of the final layout sheets. It is as much your yearbook as our own. The Eptiome of what? I onced asked. The eptiome of headaches, perhaps, but more important, to me, the epitome of productive satisfaction.

Special thanks to Lisa Parone, Jeff Aibel, Jan Surotchak, John Czekanski and Brown and White writers Jeff Eichenfield, Barbara Robertson, Andy Lehren, Ann Lewnes, Cathy Benner, and Frank Rudisil for providing the copy in this book.

The 1982 Epitome, printed by offset lithography was published by Hunter Publishing Co., Winston-Salem, North Carolina. The paper used is primarily #80 Enamel Coated; #80 Gloss paper is used in the signatures that contain color photographs. Body copy is set in 10-point Avant Book, whereas identifications are set in 8-point Helvetica italics. The predominant headline style is 24 point Avant Bold.

Many of the photographs in this book are the work of University students. The senior portraits and most of the group pictures were taken by Merin Studios, Philadelphia. Athletic team photos were done by Ryan Studios, Bethlehem.
